R&R SELECTIONS

Our Story

Three family founders established R&R Selections in 2015, with the idea that high-quality, fine wines from Greece should be widely available in the U.S. market. From the dramatic islands of the Aegean Sea, to gently rolling ancient hillsides of the mountainous north, R&R Selections brings you the unique and varied terroir of Greece. We source wines that possess a sense of place and that focus on sustainable, single-vineyard offerings. Come explore the ageless tale of Greece, captured perfectly, in a bottle of fine wine.

Palivou Estate

Peloponnese, Nemea

Palivou Estate represents a multigenerational winemaking family with deep ties to winemaking in the Ancient Nemea region. The modern estate was founded by George and Aggeliki Palivou in the early 1990's, and today George and Aggeliki's daughters, Evangelia and Vassiliki, have taken the winery into the next generation of winemaking. Their wines have become recognized among the best in Greece and are found on wine lists all over the country. Evangelia has a degree in oenology/chemistry and Vassiliki manages marketing and business operations; together they are a formidable sister duo. Notably, Palivou Estate is uniquely vinifying single vineyard selections of Agiorgitiko and other varietals making their wines exceptionally focused and with distinct quality. They are a certified organic winery and use many biodynamic practices.

Wine Art Estate

Northern Greece, Drama

Wine Art Estate lies at the foot of Mount Pangaion in Drama, Northern Greece. Since ancient times the region has been known for the cultivation of the vine and the production of wines, as evidenced by the ruins of a Sanctuary of Dionysus, the ancient Greek god of wine. Wine Art Estate was created by civil engineer Yannis Papadopoulos and architect Yannis Kalaitzidis who became passionate winemakers. They created a beautiful winery in the early 1990s and are known for their award-winning wines. Currently, the son of Yannis Papadopoulos, Akis Papadopoulos, is the lead oenologist, having studied winemaking and chemistry in Bordeaux. The wines are highly distinguished in Greece and are vinified from indigenous and international varieties.

La Tour Melas

Central Greece, Achinos

Set on 27 acres surrounded by ancient, untouched oak forests, overlooking the Aegean Sea in central Greece, La Tour Melas is making unforgettable, award-winning wines in a very special way. La Tour Melas uses biodynamic, organic methods and treats the vineyard as a unified organism. This balances the interrelationship of soil, plants, and animals as a self-nourishing system without external input. Flocks of geese and sheep graze the vineyard in winter to keep weeds in control, and bees begin pollinating the surrounding flowers in spring. In harmony with the astronomical planting calendar, artisan winegrowers choose the precise phase of the moon for cultivating, pruning, harvesting, and even filling bottles and racking barrels.

Manousakis Winery

Vatolakkos (Chania), Crete

The philosophy of the Manousakis Winery is simple: they believe in carefully and organically cultivating the vines to absorb the terroir. Each bottle of Nostos Wines captures the character of this verdant island, and the slopes of the Lefka Ori Mountains of Western Crete. Ted Manousakis planted the first vineyard in 1993 with the principle that organic farming was the only way to show respect for nature and the environment. In 2007, his daughter Alexandra Manousakis began taking over the winery, and has moved production from around 35,000 bottles of wine per year to approximately 150,000 bottles annually. They work with exciting Cretan varietals like Romeiko and Vidiano, but are internationally renowned for their Rhone varietals.
